LifeLongDiary explainer/how to

There are three elements to your LifeLongDiary:

- ▶ 1. A diary that starts on your birthday where you can begin to record the story of your life. You can record something that happened today, then record your first memory, then something that happened 20 years ago and the program will automatically arrange those inputs in chronological order.
- ▶ 2. You can (if you choose to) work on completing your four generation family tree, recording your birth, your parents, partners, siblings, children and their children's details.
- ▶ 3. You can (again, if you choose to) share your Diary with other family and friends by specific invitation. These invited people cannot edit or change your diary, but they can add comments and suggestions. These invitations can be withdrawn at any time.

EVERY FAMILY HAS A STORY ...

The LifeLongDiary / Journal has been created to enable the permanent, secure and private recording of a 'LIFE' in words and pictures.

It is a unique, enchanting way to record an individual or a family's history and ancestry and designed to build and enhance family bonds.

It contains a diary or journal that begins on a birth date and runs for an entire life, with a storyline to tag and record significant events, past, present or future.

It is an album where places, dates, photos and videos may be added to illustrate these records.

LifeLongDiary also includes a four generation family tree.

This is where you start to record your story. The 'tag' is very useful as your story gets longer. If you type the 'tag' in the search box it will find it quickly.

Next, create a title and record your story, add a date, location, images and videos to illustrate your story if required. When all the photos and videos are uploaded, click on the 'Record Story' bar. Please be patient as the images and videos are uploaded.
